The out-of-the-box integrations help simplify the setup and adoption of FloQast's close management software while bolstering security by providing secure access via SSO. These new integrations address enhanced security and governance requirements for security-conscious industries such as, among others, financial services, healthcare and aerospace.

With the new integrations of Microsoft OneDrive and Egnyte, FloQast close management software can directly and securely access financial data residing in Excel workbooks housed within these cloud storage applications. This innovative approach ensures that accountants can leverage the familiarity and flexibility of Excel while maintaining security and retaining ownership and control of their sensitive financial data. FloQast accomplishes this by securely accessing customer financial data from Excel-based account reconciliations to make certain all accounts are automatically tied-out against the General Ledger system. This approach reduces the risk of error and eliminates hours of manual work each month.

The integrations with Okta and Google SSO further strengthen security by supporting password complexity and Multi-Factor Authentication. Integration with the identity management solutions helps ensure FloQast close management software can only be accessed by authorized users which bolsters governance and security.

These new integrations complement FloQast's existing partnerships with Box, Dropbox and Google Drive.

“The financial services industry – specifically accounting – is extremely security conscious as it constantly deals with high volumes of highly sensitive information,” said Ronen Vengosh, vice president of business development at

Egnyte. “Egnyte’s integration with FloQast provides an easy-to-use interface for accounting professionals to collaborate on financial records and efficiently close their books, without losing custody of sensitive documents or risking violation of compliance regulations.”

“FloQast provides accounting teams a single place to manage the close and gives everyone visibility. These new integrations expand our current product footprint and extend our capabilities while also demonstrating FloQast’s flexibility to address the myriad increasingly important concerns accountants face today,” said Mike Whitmire, CPA, co-founder and chief executive officer of FloQast. “The new integrations with Egnyte, OneDrive, Google SSO and Okta, along with our existing integration partners, ensure that enforce the highest levels of governance and security.”

ChannelAdvisor

Corporation (NYSE:ECOM), a leading provider of cloud-based e-commerce solutions that enable retailers and branded manufacturers to increase global sales, today announced significant enhancements and additions to its platform at Catalyst Americas 2017, ChannelAdvisor's annual e-commerce conference. David Spitz, ChannelAdvisor CEO, will present a keynote to Catalyst attendees, announcing that the company will support merchants partnering with Amazon, Jet.com, and Overstock in a wholesale or drop ship capacity.

“For 16 years, we’ve supported brands and retailers that wanted to sell on marketplaces as third-party sellers. With our added support for first party and dropship, we're covering the entire spectrum of sales available on retail sites, simplifying e-commerce for our customers and helping them save time, money and effort," said Spitz.

Spitz also introduced the new ChannelAdvisor Fulfillment Network. The network will support integrations with shipping label providers and fulfillment carriers including Amazon Seller Fulfilled Prime, Fedex, UPS and Stamps.com for USPS. These integrations help sellers get rate quotes, purchase and print shipping labels and barcode scan for quick order access directly from the ChannelAdvisor platform. In addition to these native integrations, the ChannelAdvisor Fulfillment Network will offer access to dozens of third-party logistics providers, freight forwarders and software solutions, to help simplify and economize e-commerce operations for customers.

In addition to this news, Catalyst attendees will get a sneak peek at new features that will be included in ChannelAdvisor's expanded product suite. Namely, ChannelAdvisor is announcing Product Content Optimization, which syndicates valuable product data across multiple retailers, ad networks, and other destinations. ChannelAdvisor will offer support for content management, optimization and delivery to help customize product content for optimal performance on channels such as Google, Facebook, Amazon and Instagram.

Other significant developments scheduled to be announced at Catalyst include support for more sources of demand around the world, notably Tanga, Overstock, Pricefalls and Tophatter. ChannelAdvisor now supports 90 marketplaces worldwide.
